Tools and Tips for Capturing the Complete Oral Anatomy in Denture Impressions

Gregory Skinner, DDS and Mark Seiter, CDT

It Starts With the Perfect Impression

Gregory Skinner, DDS, introduces Adjust-a-Tray™ a must have tool for your practice. He shows techniques to save time and money by reducing the number of appointments needed in delivering removable prosthetics.

There are 141 ways to make an impression with four widths, three lengths and two heights available in a single tray. The Adjust-a-Tray finally delivers the advantages of a one-size-fits-all solution to the conventional dental impression.

Mark Seiter, CDT, reveals what is happening in the lab that severely compromises removable prosthetic outcomes and why the distortion-free capture of the complete anatomy is critical in both the analog and digital workflows.

Together they share their experience in how to maximize your time and talent, control redo's and patient expectations, and reduce stress and frustration managing denture patients.
